Three of these things below are foods that are OK to eat. But one is a poison. Can you tell which one? You probably can't, and that's precisely the point. Sometimes poisons can look like cereal or candy, which is why you should never eat anything you find without asking an adult first to make sure it's OK to eat. It's no fun to get big tummy aches or a trip to the hospital, so don't put things you find around the house in your mouth!
